

The Saturday morning Unity360 Community Dialogues are a critical component of the Race in Retrospect Series. The dialogues are an opportunity for the authors to connect the past with the present, and to invite participants to engage in open discussion of the topics and questions raised by their books. In his second conversation with the South Florida People Color audience, Dr. Ortiz will participate in an in-depth dialogue on the significance of his book and America's popularized view of our collective history. The conversation will continue to bring into focus the current crisis of anti-black violence in the nation.

Join us at the Sulphur Springs Museum and Heritage Center for a trip back in time through the games that kids and adults used to play. Throw a spear with an atlatl just like Native American kids might have thousands of years ago, and try out other games that have been popular throughout Florida's history. This event is free and open to the public, and is presented in association with the Smithsonian's Hometown Teams Exhibit, Aug. 10 – Sept. 21.

Too often discussions about race are avoided out of fear of offending someone or creating uncomfortable situations. The Museum of Science & History and 904WARD invite you to join us for Cultural Conversations: Race Cards, a program designed to facilitate respectful dialogue around race. With the use of friendly moderators and Race Cards, this program hopes to create thought-provoking and open conversation about race, identity, and social issues in a welcoming environment. Guests will also have the opportunity to tour the Legacy of Lynching exhibit during the program. Spots are limited, please RSVP at themosh.org.
